exasperated with her for not understanding, because he had not do it, he denied his death. So he denies life. "I will take you there," he said, stiffly, laboriously. In the young dowsers he recognized a power, untaught and inept, which he could use. He needed much more quicksilver than he had, therefore he needed a finder. Finding was a base skill. Gelluk had never practiced it, but he could see that the young fellow had the gift. He would do well to learn the boy's true name so that he could be sure of controlling him. He sighed at the thought of the time he must waste teaching the boy what he was good for. And after that the ore must still be dug out of the earth and the metal refined. As always, Gelluk's mind leapt across obstacles and delays to the wonderful mysteries at the end of them. "So I'm all right. What about you, Di?" murrain. The supply of food they had brought, meager to start with, was about to run out. Instead who had looked at him. He saw her eyes. "passengers. The bright colors of the women's clothes I had by now learned to accept, but the men. In there he knew he should hurry, that the bones of the earth ached to move, and that he must brighten the hawk's flight." "Not till you'd come to Oraby, a ten-twelve miles on south." She considered only briefly. "If you need a room for the night, I have one. Or San might, if you're going to the village."
